METHODOLOGY

This research gauged the opinions of Canadians on the path forward they would prefer for the Senate.

Nanos conducted an RDD dual frame (cell and landlines) hybrid telephone and online random survey of 1,058 Canadians, 18 years of age or older, from October 31st to November 2nd, 2026 as part of an omnibus survey. The sample included both cell and landlines across Canada. The results were statistically checked and weighted by age and gender using the latest Census information and the sample is geographically stratified to be representative of Canada.

Individuals randomly called using random digit dialling with a maximum of five call backs.

The margin of error for this survey is ±3.0 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.

This study was commissioned by the Globe and Mail and the research was conducted by Nanos Research.

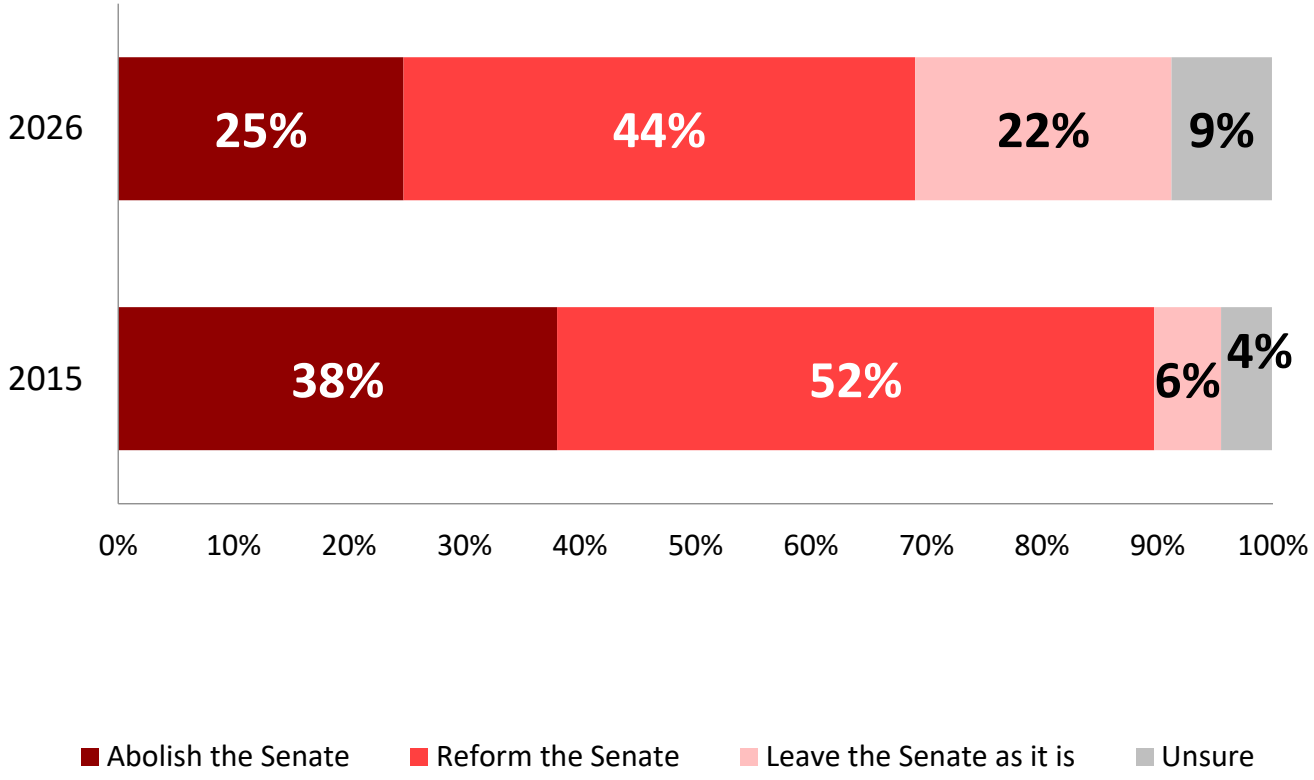

Full data tables with weighted and unweighted number of interviews is here. Cells within the tabulations that have significant differences are highlighted in yellow.

Future of the Senate

Q – As you may know, in Canada there is a House of Commons that proposes legislation and a Senate which generally reviews legislation proposed and approved by the House of Commons. Which of the following possible paths forward would you prefer for the Senate? [ROTATE]

Over 2 in 5 Canadians would prefer the Senate be reformed (44%) rather than abolished (25%) or leaving it as is (22%). This is a significant shift from 2015, where more than one in two preferred reforming the Senate (52%), 38 per cent wanted to abolish it and just six per cent preferred leaving it as is.

*Weighted to the true population proportion.
*Charts may not add up to 100 due to rounding.
